++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Overnight rain, continuing into Saturday. Drier from the afternoon onwards.

This Evening and Tonight:
Initially dry, but a band of rain and cloud will soon arrive in the west and spread to all areas overnight, bringing persistent rainfall and falling heavily over the hills. Feeling cold, partly due to strengthening winds. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Saturday:
The rain will clear to the east by late morning, with a few showers in the north following. Dry for most during the afternoon, with occasional sunny spells. Feeling milder. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Mostly dry with sunny spells on both Sunday and Monday, with some overnight showers in between. Outbreaks of rain, perhaps heavy, will arrive during Monday afternoon and continue through Tuesday.
